Sounds of North: Two Centuries of Canadian Piano Music

European-based musical genres have been created in Canada for over three hundred years. Gradually Canadian composers have developed a sense of place in their musical creations.

Canadian pianist Elaine Keillor takes the listener on a unique journey through compositions written between 1807 and 2010.

The piano pieces presented on these four CDs show how composers moved beyond just giving a Canadian-influenced title to their composition. In different ways they allowed the space of their Canadian region to seep into their approach to organizing sounds and wrestled with the great myth of Canada as North.

Available in record stores on May, 9, 2012.

These recordings are dedicated to the memory of Dr. Helmut Kallmann (1922-2012)

This set of recordings featuring Canadian piano music from 1807 to the present would not have happened without the years of research done by Dr. Helmut Kallmann, the first major historian of musical culture in Canada.

Dr. Kallmann, principal editor of the Encyclopedia of Music in Canada, was for over two decades the guiding spirit of the Canadian Musical Heritage Society. Volume 22, Piano Music III, edited by Kallmann, was the resource used for many of the compositions performed in Sounds of North.
