Anyone who has ever had the pleasure of meeting Dorothy Farquharson (orchestra librarian with the Hamilton Philharmonic and our membership secretary), or hearing her speak on the work of the orchestra librarian, will want to attend the Orchestra Library Workshop on April 26 (1:30 to 5:30) at Hamilton Place, 50 Main St. W., Hamilton, Ontario. The workshop is being held in conjunction with the ACO-OFSO Conference (Association of Canadian Orchestras-Ontario Federation of Symphony Orchestras), which is to take place on April 25-28. Dorothy, who will be in charge of the workshop, says that those who attend will really "go through all the motions" of running an orchestral library. She even hopes to have a publisher on hand to help explore the murky area of copyright. The registration fee for the workshop portion of the conference of $10 includes a luncheon. Registration is open to all who are interested.

Many people should find the entire conference interesting. Those who attend the ACO-OFSO portion will hear discussions of practically everything concerning orchestras, plus enjoy the added attraction of attending the rehearsals of two or three Canadian compositions for orchestra commissioned for the event; these rehearsals are meant to demonstrate how commissioned works are brought to the public. The registration fee for the entire conference, including the workshop, is $30. To register, write to the following address:
